LOCAL AND PERSONAL

VARIED PROGRAM SCHEDULED FOR ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION HERE.

Barbecue Dinner to be Served at Noon, Auspices St. John's Ladies.

Plans are rapidly going forward for what promises to be one of the best Armistice Day celebrations ever held here. Committees have been meeting several times this week and everything is expected to be ready by Armistice Day, which is next Wednesday, Nov. 11th.

Calf and goat roping, together with a matched horse race or two, are the outstanding events on the program. Miss Pillie Merritt is planning an unusual program with the members of her dancing class, as is Miss Wilma Spratt, who has charge of the Hondo High School Choral Club. Mr. C. D. Sadler and his F. F. A. boys will have an agricultural and livestock exhibit that will be interesting. They will also have some entertainment for you that is different, something that has never been on the programs of former November 11th celebrations. Mr. Tom Laxson will have charge of the games for the school children with prizes for the winners.

At noon a barbecue dinner and all the trimmings, together with salad and cake, will be served by the ladies of St. John's church. Drinks, ice cream, etc., will be on sale. Keno and other games will be in evidence. Other features besides the main ones mentioned will also be available.

Plan now to spend Armistice Day at the fairgrounds in Hondo. No admission will be charged for entrance to the grounds or for any feature except 35c for the dinner and 15c for the grandstand. Of course, there will also be admission charged at the big dance at night.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH.

"The religion that will save our country must be a religion which is scripturally Christian."

"A religion which is individual. The saving of souls, patiently, one by one, must be the prime business of the Church."

"A religion which is democratic, knowing no class. We need a power in our religion that will rebuke those who from ulterior motives would raise class against class."

"A religion which is not mechanical and conventional, but a religion of the heart."

"A religion that is willing to struggle, to wrestle, to agonize. This means fighting on many fronts, first of all against the old Adam in us. It is also a fight against the perplexities that are causing us endless bewilderment today. The educational problem is one of these perplexities. This can be solved only by Christian elementary education."—Dr. W. E. Schuette, address Oct. 11 in San Antonio on "Religion and Country."

The Church flings out a challenge today as never before: "Come out from among them, and be ye separate!" And the great apostle Paul is re-echoing the words of the Lord of the Church: "He that is not with Me is against Me; and he that gathering not with Me, scattereth abroad." Jesus in Matthew 12, 30.

English services on Sunday, Nov. 15, at 10:30; Sunday school and Bible classes 9:00 A. M. Sprottville at 2:30 P. M. Junior League at 7:30. No services and Sunday school on Nov. 8.

On Nov. 22, German services with Holy Communion at 10:30 A. M.; English services at 7:30 P. M. Thanksgiving service Thursday, Nov. 26, at 9:30 A. M.

SHOWER.

Miss Mary Octavia Davis, 1022 Blanco Road, San Antonio, honored Miss LaVelle Stubblefield, a bride-elect of the week, with a shower Sunday afternoon. White pottery bowls filled with white and gold chrysanthemums and blue corn flowers were used to decorate the apartment.

Ice cream molded in ring shape and embossed with orange blossoms, and cake squares iced in white with sugar-spun orange blossoms, were served to the following: Mesdames W. D. Stubblefield, John Turner, Don Nugent, Ben Minot, Kerwin Williams, Edwin Hooks, Henry Boerner, W. N. Stubblefield, Misses Mae Baldwin, Esther Schulz, Ruth Patton, Hettie Nester, Celia Cavazos, Ruby Cole, Anne Davis of Hondo, the honoree, Miss LaVelle Stubblefield, and the hostess, Miss Mary Octavia Davis.

Miss Stubblefield is a former schoolmate of Miss Anne Davis and a member of the Burnet Faculty with Miss Mary Octavia Davis in San Antonio.

AN APPRECIATION.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Hondo High School takes this opportunity to thank the people of Hondo and vicinity for their large attendance at the Halloween Carnival Saturday night; also the teachers of Hondo High School, the ladies of the organization, the children and any others who in any way contributed toward the success of the affair. A sum of $190.65 was cleared from the benefit.

THE VICTORS 1936 ELECTION

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

TO ALL DEMOCRATS.

Our party has gained an overwhelming victory in the tremendous vote given Roosevelt and Garner. I am happy that Medina County took part in this victory by giving a substantial majority for the Democratic nominees.

As you know, an effort is being made to raise $250,000 in Texas to be used to defray the expenses of the campaign to re-elect Roosevelt and Garner. Medina County's quota is $319.00. To date $180.00 has been sent in from this county. We are still accepting donations and anyone wishing to have a part in this great victory can hand or send their contributions to me. Donations from $1.00 up are being asked from every loyal friend of the Democratic

JOHN N. GARNER

Party. Help us raise Medina County's quota.

L. J. BRUCKS,
Democratic County Chairman.

BATOT-RIEBER.

Miss Cora Rieber, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Rieber of Hondo, became the happy bride of Mr. Hugo Batot, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Batot, Sr., also of Hondo, in a beautiful ceremony, Wednesday morning, November 4, 1936, at 8 o'clock, in St. John the Evangelist's Church of Hondo. Rev. T. A. Flynn performed the impressive double ring ceremony and officiated at the Nuptial High Mass. At the Offertory Mrs. Volney Boon and Mrs. Alfred Rath rendered that most beautiful of vocal compositions, "Ave Maria", with violin obligato played by Margaret Ann Knopp. The Church Choir sang the Mass.

The candle-lighted altars and Sanctuary were beautified with white chrysanthemums and fern. Potted fern and floor baskets of chrysanthemums and fern banked the aisle leading to the entrance of the Sanctuary.

The bridal party entered to the strains of the Wedding March from "Lohengrin" played by Mrs. Volney Boon, in the following order: Miss Dorothy Marie Rieber, bridesmaid, in blue taffeta, and Miss Ruby Rieber, maid of honor in pink taffeta. They wore ankle length gowns with turbans made of satin rosettes and net to match the gowns, and silver sandals. Arm bouquets of pink roses were carried. Peggy Ann Batot and Glenrose Mechler dressed in pale green taffeta dresses, silver sandals and bands of tiny flowers in their hair, carrying colonial bouquets, made lovely little flower girls, while Roy Edward Meyer, in a black and white satin suit carried the rings on a little white satin pillow. Walter Weynand was groomsmen and Oscar Batot best man. The bride entered on the arm of her father. The groom with his best man, advanced to the Sanctuary entrance to receive his bride and led her to the altar.

The bride was attired in beautiful ivory satin, made en traine, with inserted lace around the neckline and in the long sleeves which ended in a point at the wrist. The standing collar was adorned with flowers, and little buttons extended from the back of the collar to the waistline. Her veil of tulle and lace was fitted to a cap finished with clusters of orange blossoms on each side, and a crown of seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white bride's roses.

After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served to the wedding party, and the immediate families of the couple at the home of the bride's parents. The large white wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom and a silver wedding bell, centered the table.

Immediately after the breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Batot left on a short motor trip. The bride wore a travel suit of navy blue and accessories to match.

Mrs. Batot is a graduate of St. Patrick's Academy in San Antonio, and attended the Incarnate Word College. She was a teacher for several years in public schools of Bandera and Medina Counties. Mr. Batot is a successful farmer and ranchman. He has a large circle of friends, and is esteemed by all who know him.

POLITICAL PROPHECY.

By Clayton Rand.

Your scribe heard a lot of windy talk over the elections. His radio has squawked with static, his eardrums have been pounded with speeches and his paper full of straw ballots.

One prophecy was as bad as another but it was easy to predict who would win in this battle of ballots—the politicians, of course.

No matter which side had come in politicians won again, and the people lost.

It's hard to prophecy just when the taxpayers will run the country again. People being gluttons for political punishment it sometimes takes them a generation to get their eyes open. But right now, any way you figure it, the politicians run the country. They wield the whip and we dance.

THE NEWSPAPER.

A newspaper always is advertising its town. No business so serves the community as a whole. By its very nature, it must tell constantly of its city to the community and the better that paper, the greater influence it is for good to its town.

The advertisers use it because it reaches the people through a medium that the subscriber thinks enough of to pay for. They use it because they have a business message that the public wants to read, and they get results. Yet there are three results to newspaper advertising. First, direct results. Second, indirect results from name publicity causing buyers to think of your store when they do want something in your line. Third, the advertising revenue makes possible a better paper, which in turn makes a better city.

Newspaper advertising is the foundation of all advertising. First, expenditures should go there as the best investment, provided in a single cost coverage. Some other forms are good, yet the records show them to be supplementary to the paper. ALL great successes in merchandising lines use newspapers, with all other forms secondary.—Oconomowoc (Wis.) Enterprise.

"SOAKING THE POOR".

In recent years the government has depended more and more on indirect taxes for revenue, and less and less on direct taxes.

Indirect taxes are simply levies hidden in the cost of commodities and services—taxes paid in advance by producer or marketer. We seldom even know we are paying them, but their whole influence is to boost the cost of living.

This trend of government is extremely menacing. In effect, indirect taxes reduce the incomes of us all—and the greatest burden falls on the person of small means. A laborer earning twenty dollars a week eats as much bread as a man whose income may be a hundred or a thousand a week, but his tax contribution to the government, represented by part of the cost of the bread he eats, is the same—in relation to his earnings, much greater.

The upshot of this is that the bulk of the people, those of small or moderate means, are most adversely affected by rising taxes.—Industrial News Review.

OWLS MEET DEL RIO WILDCATS FRIDAY NIGHT.

The Owls encounter their greatest difficulty so far this season in their drive for the district crown Friday night when they meet the Del Rio Wildcats on Cowboy Field in Del Rio. Every person who possibly can should attend this game and yell for the Owls who need plenty of support in order to come through with a victory.

This game will play a great part in determining the winner of the northern half of our district. Should the Owls win they have only Sabinal to defeat for the crown. However, the Wildcats have yet to play the Uvalde Coyotes. As you know, the Del Rio team has not been defeated or tied this season and has been piling up very large scores against their opponents. The game will start promptly at 8:00 P. M. The prices for admission will be 25c for school children and 50c for adults. All of the officials for this game have not yet been decided upon, but Fred Thompson of Eagle Pass will be the referee, and "Dub" Norton, assistant coach at Sidney Lanier, will also be an official.

The numbers, names and positions of the players on the two teams are as follows:

P. T. A. CARNIVAL A GALA AFFAIR.

The Hallowe'en Carnival sponsored by the P. T. A. Saturday night was a festive occasion that brought much pleasure to everyone concerned and a great financial success. About two hundred dollars was made on this carnival which shows that everyone cooperated as much as possible.

The parade which took place about 6:00 through the business section of town was one of wide variety. Every species of ghosts, witches, and goblins had a representative in this parade.

Ginger Fusselman, Senior candidate, was elected Queen of the Carnival. The other three candidates who were also in the parade ran in the following order: Evelyn Knopp, Junior candidate, second; Sis Meyer, Sophomore candidate, third; Bonita Speece, Freshman candidate, fourth. To me it seems that all four of the above-mentioned girls should feel honored because of their being selected to represent their respective classes.

H. E. CLUB MEETING.

The H. E. Club held its regular meeting in the auditorium Thursday afternoon at 3:45.

The meeting was called to order and turned over to the program chairman. An interesting program was carried out with the Hallowe'en.

Plans for joining the F. H. A. (Future Homemakers of America) were discussed, but nothing definite was decided upon. This organization is closely related to the F. F. A. This will be discussed further at the next meeting.

At the close of the meeting everyone went to the Home Economics room where pie, which had been baked by the H. E. II classes, was served.

Every member with the exception of three was present.

CIVICS CLASS ENTERS POLITICS.

The Civics Class was the scene of two political speeches Tuesday morning. One of these speeches pointed out the good qualities of the Democratic platform and the defects of the Republican platform. The other, however, gave the good features of the Republicans and the defects of the Democrats.

To me it seems that there are plenty defects and "weak places" in both the Democratic and Republican platforms, while each of them also has a few good features.

GLEE CLUB NEWS.

The Glee Club is now practicing on three songs to be sung at the November 11th celebration at the Fair Grounds. The songs being practiced are: "It's a Long Way to Tipperary", "There's a Long Long Trail A'winding" and "The Stars and Stripes Forever". Songs of this sort will bring back memories of the World War, and are in keeping with the Armistice Day program.

FOOTBALL OVER THE WEEK-END.

The two most important games in our district over the week-end were the Carrizo Springs-Pearsall and Uvalde-Cotulla tussles. The score of the first game was: Carrizo Springs 26, Pearsall 16, while the score at the end of the second game read: Uvalde 26, Cotulla 7.

FLAG POLE PAINTED.

The flag pole on our campus has been painted. Have you noticed it? It received a coat of silver paint Monday afternoon and now looks very nice. Perhaps some patriotic person had it painted in order that the flag can wave more proudly on November 11th.

At a meeting of the Sophomore class Tuesday the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President: Howard Huesser. Vice-President: Helen Burgin. Treasurer: Fred Bader. Reporter: Frances Ruth Fly.

NOVEMBER 11 TO BE HOLIDAY.

Next Wednesday, November 11th, will be a school holiday. As you already know, it is Armistice Day which is a national holiday every year.

H. G. Wells is said to be the most prolific writer of the age. And all this time we thought it was Anonymous, Pro Bono Publico, Old Subscriber, or Steady Reader.—Jackson (Miss.) Daily News.

The following article appeared in the Houston Post and was written by Dick Freeman:

Late last Friday afternoon I wandered down into the beautiful Sanford Stadium in Athens, Ga. The Rice football team had unloaded from a train early in the afternoon and suited up immediately to get its collective land legs for the game with the Bulldogs on the following day.

I walked down the many flights of steps into the bowl and out onto the field.

Backfield Coach Cecil Grigg was standing over at one end of the gridiron, talking earnestly to Jake Schuehle, the Hondo sophomore and quarterback, who was booting the ball under the watchful eye of Cecil.

"That's the way to boot that ball," Cecil said. "But, you hard-headed Dutchman, you won't kick that way in the game. You'll get out there and press and try to 'kill' it, and you'll get no distance at all."

"I'll betcha," answered Jake with a grin.

"You can't tell me," Grigg said. "You'll try to kill it. There's no reason in the world why you can't average 40 yards if you take things easy. Don't throw your whole body at the ball. Hit it with your foot, not your body."

"I'll betcha," was the only answer. And in the game, Schuehle turned in the most remarkable exhibition of punting I have ever seen. He kicked the ball 13 times, twice in the shadow of his goal line, for an average of 43 yards, and one fizzled punt from midfield traveled only 11 yards to pull the average down to 43.

The funny part of it is that when Schuehle came to Rice from Hondo he was accompanied by Floyd Mechler, who was the better kicker of the two. Floyd has had the tough assignment of working from quarter to center and back to quarter, but he has hustled hard and he'll get into plenty of action before he ends his grid career with the Owls.

TAKE CARE OF TYPING EQUIPMENT.

The entire student body and the typing students in particular should be more careful with the equipment which they are permitted to use. It seems too bad that some students can't realize the value of those excellent new typewriters. Several of them already need repair; and the things that have happened to them have not been done accidentally, either, which makes it worse. Therefore, try to take care of this equipment.

Learn the amazing benefits of GULFPRIDE

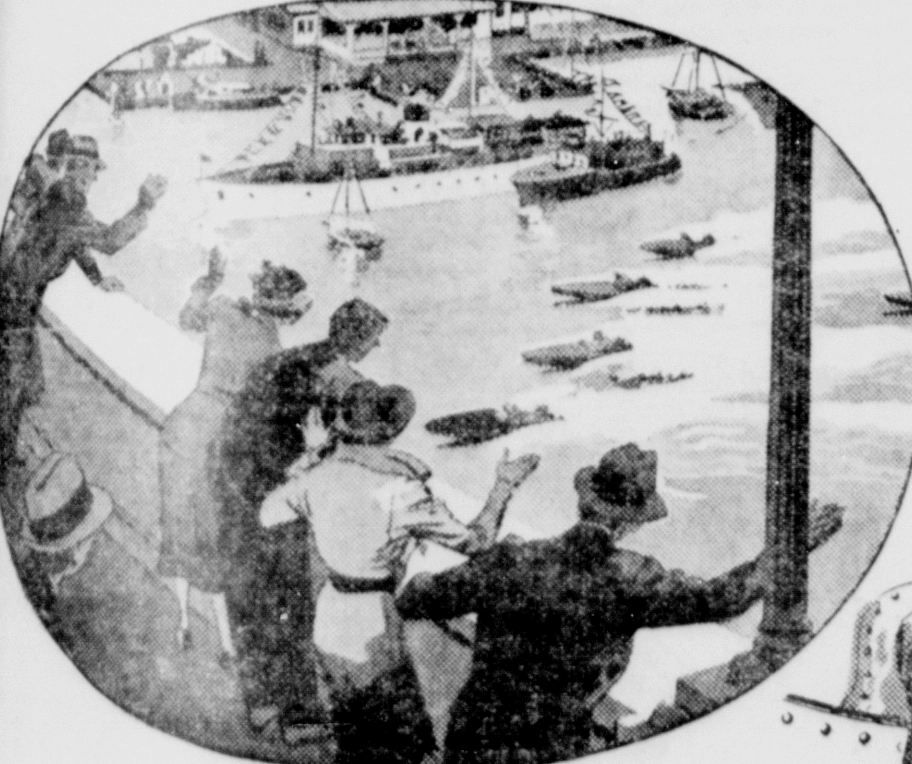

THE WORLD'S FINEST MOTOR OIL

WHY is it that no other motor oil in all the world can deliver the performance of GULFPRIDE OIL?

Because only GULFPRIDE starts from the finest Pennsylvania crudes . . . is refined to the same point as other fine motor oils . . .
and is then further refined by Gulf's exclusive Alchlor process!

This process is the most efficient ever developed—the fruit of 15 years' research by Gulf scientists—men who stand behind every Gulf product.

Read the facts on this page. Then drive into any Gulf dealer's—and replace your old summer-worn oil with GULFPRIDE now.

(Above)—MANY WORLD'S RECORDS on land, sea, and in the air have been set with GULF-PRIDE OIL. Racing drivers, fliers, speedboat pilots swear by it. Proved in the toughest competition, GULF-PRIDE will outwear, outlast, and outperform any oil you ever used in your car!

(Left)—4 TIMES AROUND EARTH. A man drove his automobile on GULFPRIDE OIL 100,000 miles—without ever needing a repair, without ever having the head off the motor, without ever adding one drop of oil between drains. Expect great things of GULFPRIDE—you'll get them!

GULFPRIDE

THE ONLY ALCHLOR-PROCESSED 100% PURE PENNSYLVANIA OIL

THE ALCHLOR PROCESS
removes all sludge and residue.
Proof: we took 6 of the finest Pennsylvania oils we could buy and put them through the Al-chlor process. It removed 25% waste from already highly refined oils! Be wise—get GULF-PRIDE—the only oil that has this head start.

WOLF HUNTERS TO MEET AT COTULLA, TEXAS, NOVEM-BER 16-19th.

The South Texas Wolf Hunter's Association will hold their 15th annual Field Trials and Bench Show at Cotulla, Texas, November 16-19th, 1936. This bids fair to be the greatest meet the Association has ever held. Hunters from all over Texas and from other States are going to attend. The hunt will be held on the Story Ranch near Cotulla. Much interest is being manifested by the hunters because of the larger number of awards that are being given. The largest number of awards that the Association has ever given will be given as prizes this year. Twenty loving cups and thirty-six ribbons will be given on the bench and in the field. Six of the cups are called Three Year Winners which have to be won three times by the same kennel before becoming permanent property of the winner. There will be classes for puppies under six months of age and pups between six and twelve months as well as the dog and all-age hounds. The puppies and pups will draw a cup each, this year, as well as ribbons. All hounds entered in the derby and all-age class on the bench must be entered in the field trials as well, and must be numbered before the bench show, which will be held Monday at 3:30 P. M. The first field trial cast will be Tuesday, November 17th, at day break. Mr. J. W.
Elliot of Mexia, Texas will act as Bench Show Judge and Mr. Warren Talk of Runge, Texas, will be the Ring Master. Mr. J. A. Rowan of San Antonio, will be the Master of Hounds and Dr. E. A. Benbow, of Luling, Texas, will be Marshall of the Grounds.

There will be a horn blowing contest on Monday night and several prizes will be given for the best horn blowers. On Wednesday night there will be an old fiddlers contest and many prizes will be given in this contest.

All hunters are invited to come and bring their hounds and enter them and enjoy the hunt.

in a Temple hospital. Mr. Ford has been seriously ill for several weeks and his relatives and friends are greatly worried over his condition which is still precarious at this time.

"TAKE A TIP FROM THE AIR LINES", SAYS NOTED FLIER.

In a recent interview Major Al Williams, famous acrobatic flier and speed ace, emphasized the importance of an airline keeping its ships in the air as much as possible. Each time a plane is grounded to undergo repairs, the depreciation and other fixed charges rapidly eat up the profits that it has made for the operators.

A few years ago, many of the giant airliners that operate on the skyways of America had to be withdrawn from service every 200 hours so that their motors could be completely overhauled. Upon examination, the bearings, wrist-pins, pistons, and cylinder walls were found to be considerably worn. The oils used to lubricate these parts were classified as being among the best obtainable, but the best was none too good and science had to discover a lubricant that would permit the operation of these ships for longer periods.

Science has bridged the gap with Gulfpride Oil, and today many of the planes of Eastern Airlines and other air transport companies operate for more than five thousand hours before they require overhauling.

"Motorists who want their cars to last longer, perform better, and operate more efficiently should take a tip from the airlines," said Major Williams. "Alcholor-processed Gulf-pride is the choice of many airmen whose lives depend upon the perfect lubrication of their motors. Car owners will discover that this remarkable lubricant will slash the operating costs of their automobiles and will permit easier starting when the temperature takes a nose dive."

TRADES DAY POSTPONED.

A blackjack game between three of Hondo's young colored sports one night last week resulted in one be-missed, the cuts not serious and the greatest loss was the time and energy spent by the Sheriff and his deputies in running down the culprit.

SAN ANTONIO LIVESTOCK.

Monday, November 2, 1936.
(Federal-State Market News Service)

Receipts on the San Antonio livestock market Monday included a heavy run of calves and light weight yearlings of mostly medium and lower grades. Trading on all calves was very dull after first rounds with price levels on calves and yearlings around 25 to 35 cents and more lower. Other classes held unevenly steady to weak with last week's close. Estimated receipts consisted of 600 cattle and 1100 calves.

Plain matured grass steers brought mostly $4.50 to $5.00, no fat kinds offered. Good fat calves and light weight yearlings sold mostly from $5.00 to $5.25, few to $5.50, good heavy kinds scarce. Bulk of calves and yearlings were medium offerings and cashed mostly from $4.00 to $5.00 with rannies down to $3.00.
Common to medium cows sold mostly at $3.25 to $4.00, good fat kinds to $4.25, few to $4.50. Low cutters and cutters ranged mostly from $2.25 to $3.25, few shells below. Bulls brought mostly $3.25 to $4.00, few to $4.25.
Stocker calves and yearlings ranged mostly from $4.50 to $5.00, few to $5.50. Two year old stocker steers sold up to $5.75.

Hogs, receipts 600. Trading was active at around 25 to 35 cents, up from lower prices compared with last week's close. Early top was $8.50 to packers and shippers. Bulk of the good to choice 180 to 250 pounds cashed at $8.60 to $8.80, best 140 to 160 pounds mostly $7.50 to $8.50, 160 to 180 pounds $8.50 to $8.80, and few 260 to 300 pounds around $8.50 to $8.80. Packing hogs sold mostly at $7.50 to $7.75, few to $8.00.

Sheep, receipts none. Few scattered lots plain and cull aged wethers and ewes, mostly holdovers, unsold.
Demand very slow and weak.

CHILD STARS AT COLONIAL
NEXT WEEK.

The unfortunate course on which a child is sent by the separation of his parents is treated with appealing effect in "Let's Sing Again", a drama with music which will be the attraction Monday and Tuesday at the Colonial. Billy runs away from an orphanage to seek his father, now a renowned baritone. Through the medium of a song the father used to sing to his son in the cradle, the pair are reunited in a heart-grIPPING denouement. Billy is portrayed by Bobby Breenn, the movie debut for this child marvel whose voice has thrilled the radio audiences on Eddie Cantor's program.

The heart-warming story of a dimpled tot and a sweet old man—both of whom had found "the right somebody to love"—is delightfully told in the new Shirley Temple picture, "Captain January", coming Wednesday and Thursday. In a delightful mixture of song, dance and comedy, the new picture follows the adventures of Shirley and Gay Kibbee, the grizzled old lighthouse-keeper, who had rescued her from the sea, and who was jealously determined to keep her for himself.

ELMER LOESSBERG DEAD.

The sad news of the untimely death of Elmer Loessberg, young man of the Quihi Community and 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Loessberg, reached here Thursday afternoon. He died about 2:30 P. M. Thursday afternoon in a San Antonio hospital where he had been a patient for several weeks following an appendix operation.

The body was brought overland to Hondo Thursday evening by Mr. John A. Horger, local mortician. Funeral services are being held at 3 P. M. today (Friday) from the deceased youth's home at Quihi. We hope to have a more extended sketch of his life for our next issue of this paper.

BEAUTY SHOP TEMPORARILY CLOSED.

Miss Annie Heyen, proprietor and operator of The Ladies Beauty Shoppe, requests that we announce that her beauty parlor will be temporarily closed until a downstairs location can be made.

The two rooms in the National Bank building formerly occupied by Miss Heyen's shop will be fitted into offices for Judge R. J. Noonan, when he takes over the District Attorneyship on January 1st.

Performance, Beauty and Safety Mark Chevrolet's Completely New Cars

Chevrolet's 1937 engine is completely new, but adheres closely to time-proved Chevrolet engineering principles. It is of six-cylinder valve-in-head type, smoother, more powerful, more economical, and lighter.

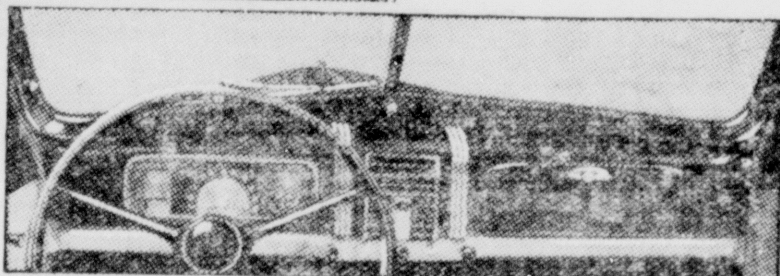

A representative model from Chevrolet's new line, typifying its beauty and grace—the Master De Luxe Sport Sedan with trunk. Note the distinctive "speed line" extending back from the side of the hood.

Luggage capacity in Chevrolet's new trunk models has been greatly increased, as has interior luggage space in other models.

Beauty and utility mark the new Chevrolet instrument panel. The windshield is of greater area, with narrow corner posts, affording better vision.

Unisteel construction joins the floor, cowl assembly, panels, and Turret Top of Chevrolet's all-silent, all-steel body, to form one integral structure, welded in all joints, and reinforced and braced for permanent silence and safety.

New power, economy, durability, safety and comfort, coupled with striking new beauty, characterize Chevrolet's new models for 1937. They are offered in two series, Master and Master De Luxe, virtually identical in appearance.

Chevrolet's fully-enclosed Knee-Action is furnished at no extra cost on the Master De Luxe models; and new Syncro-Mesh transmission, and safety plate glass all around at no extra cost, feature all models of both series.

THE WAY OF SALVATION.

By Rev. J. T. Horger.

ARTICLE NO. 4.

I am writing these articles hoping that some soul who has never received Christ as his Savior may be so instructed and encouraged as to seek and find his Savior. There are at least two ways by which one may be led to salvation. First, by the deep spiritual life and persistent prayer of God's people, the Holy Spirit may be sent to the heart of the unsaved, reproving, warning and wooing until the soul, by spiritual intuition, will turn from sin and seek the Lord and be saved; but such is not common these days.

So we turn to the second way, and say that God has said that "Whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely." So it behooves every soul to think soberly, soundly and sanely as to where they will spend eternity. It is the part of true wisdom to seek the Lord while it is called today; no one can tell the future; nor what hour will seal our doom, and we shall stand before the Judgment seat of Christ. If one thinks of turning to God, repentance is the first thing in order. John the Baptist, whom God sent to prepare the people to receive Christ, refused to accept those who did not give evidence of a genuine repentance. Jesus said: "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." Luke 13:3. St. Peter said: "Repent ye, therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord." Act 3:19.

Now, seeing that, according to Jesus, repentance is absolutely indispensable in order to salvation, we ask what it is to repent? First, St. Paul tells us that godly sorrow, that is, a contrite, sincere sorrow for our sins and wrong doing—worketh a repentance that needeth not to be repented of. So true repentance is the whole-hearted turning away from all sin and every appearance of evil, and turning to God for the forgiveness of sin transgression. True repentance means a whole-hearted purpose, God helping us, to quit the sinning business. A half-hearted repentance makes a weakly, sickly, disgraceful Christian, with a dim and doubtful hope of escaping Hell and getting to Heaven.

But there is another feature that must be joined to repentance, namely CONFESSIO of our sins. We should confess, in private and in public, before the church if practical, that we have lived a life of sin against God and our fellow man, and no more worthy to be counted a child of God; also stating our purpose, God helping us, to henceforth live a life free from sin. And if we have said or done anything against anyone, if possible we should confess the same and ask their forgiveness. And if we have taken anything unjustly from anyone, if possible it should all be returned, with interest.

Now this seems hard and humiliating; but the Scriptures say: "Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up." Repentance, confession and restitution are the foundation stones of a Christian character, and like a house with a shoddy foundation will topple and fall when truly tried, so the Christian character built on a faulty and shoddy repentance will not stand the strains of the moral and spiritual tests of life. Therefore, Jesus compared the soul that truly repents for all his past wrong conduct and turns wholeheartedly to God, as laid down in the Sermon on the Mount—Math. 5:7—to a man that built his house on the sure foundation of a rock; and when the rains descended and the floods came, and the winds blew, that house stood, for it was built upon a rock.

There is no doubt but many people come into our churches under such a milk and cider gospel and have such a shallow conviction as to sin on one hand and of righteousness on the other, and therefore they come with a repentance, confession and restitu-

Everyday Cooking Miracles

BY VIRGINIA FRANCIS

Director Hotpoint Electric Cookery Institute

"What's sauce for the turkey is sauce for the pot roast"—that's what you sooth-tasters will be claiming about this cranberry pot roast "agin" you try it. And, really, would you ever have speculated on a possible alliance between the conservative pot roast (it, what never wandered past the vegetable realm) this unit penetrates the meat slowly, tenderizing it and "rounding out" the flavor. The liquid—and only a small quantity is used, too—is held within the well-insulated walls of the cooker, thus eliminating the danger of burning and doing away with any necessary attention or watching.

When the finishing touches are added, nothing has more appetite-appeal than cranberry pot roast, cooked in the Thrift Cooker of the modern electric range.

and the festive cranberry sauce (it, what usually hobnobs at special occasions)? Well, it's happened and another of those meat-for-each-other affairs has resulted.

Proper Cooking Necessary

Now a pot roast—cranberry or otherwise—must measure up to two specifications before it can go to the table and carry off pot roast honors. First of all, the meat itself must be good; it must come from a healthy animal and, of course, be taken from the proper spot, namely the chuck, round or rump. Secondly, the pot roast must be properly cooked, and this means a low, slow cooking process in a moist atmosphere.

As told by the very name of it, a pot roast should be cooked in a "pot." That, to develop the flavor and to insure the greatest degree of tenderness. However, since this type of utensil is almost extinct—literally, "gone to pot"—the makers of the modern electric range, determined that the old-fashioned pot roast would carry on, produced the Thrift Cooker—modern pot-roaster, soup maker, steamer and quantity cooker all in one.

The Thrift Cooker of the electric range is the ideal pot roaster. The low-controlled heat obtainable in Cold oven cookery, smokeless broiling, and controlled surface cookery, as well as Thrift Cooker cookery, speak for the modern electric range in its business of producing honest-to-goodness cooking miracles right in your own kitchen.

About this cranberry pot roast which brought up the subject of Thrift Cookery—yes, this recipe is thrifty so far as time and money are concerned, but lavish as all "get out" with "appetizement."

Cranberry Pot Roast

(Serves 8)

3 or 4 pound pot roast	2 cups cranberry sauce
Salt and pepper	1/4 cup water
Flour	4 whole cloves
Fat	1 inch stick cinnamon

Season meat and dredge with flour. Brown in hot fat on surface unit of electric range turned to High Heat. Then remove rack from Thrift Cooker and place meat in cooker. Cover with cranberry sauce and water and add spices. Cover cooker and cook on Low Heat for approximately 3 hours.

GEESSE TURN CULL POTATOES INTO DOLLARS.

By Juliette Frazier.

For a number of years my neighbor has been raising potatoes as his main crop, and never failed to be able to sell all of his first class potatoes. But how to dispose of the culls to the best advantage had always presented a perplexing problem. He could not afford to pay $2.00 per day to his harvest hands to pick up the culls when he was offered only from 10 to 15c per sack for them.

Three years ago, when the market price for first class potatoes was only 60c per hundred pounds, he figured that unless he would get a little money for his culls he could not meet the expenses required for raising and harvesting the crop. Then he hit upon the idea of turning a flock of twenty-five geese upon the field after the main crop had been taken off.

The geese were turned into the potato field during the first week in October. Aside of building a small shed in one corner of the field to provide them with shelter if the weather should turn too cold for them to roost in the open, and setting a few tubs of water about to serve their aquatic needs, there was nothing more to be done for the present.

Beginning with the first of November the geese were given a light feeding of grain once a day, a mixture of oats and corn, about a cupful to each goose. With the grain, in addition to the potatoes, and the grass which grew in abundance along the edges of the field, the geese fattened rapidly, so that by the time the holiday season came around they were in first class condition for the market.

Between Thanksgiving and Christmas twenty of the geese were sold at an average price of $2.00 each, making a total of $40.00. A little figuring revealed that the geese had eaten less than 300 lbs. of grain which did not cost over 90c per hundred to raise, and about 1000 lbs. of cull potatoes which if they had been sold would have brought about $15.00 at the most. Thus leaving a net profit of $22.30, besides five geese which were kept for breeding purposes.

The question may be raised as to whether it did not cost something to raise the geese up to the age when they were put into the potato field. No. Three geese laid their eggs, hatched them, and took care of their young on a steep slope alongside a creek, and which was partly submerged under water the greater part of the year, so that it could not be cultivated. But there was plenty of green grass on it all through the season, thus making an ideal goose pasture.

Last year, when the bottom had dropped out of the poultry market, all my neighbor made a profit of $20.80 by marketing 22 geese which had been fattened on cull potatoes.

Since then four more acres have been added to my neighbor's potato field, and this year there are thirty-five geese in it, thirty of which will be marketed during the holiday season.

Anyone who raises potatoes and has a fence around the potato patch can do what my neighbor is doing, because geese are no bother, they do not make any extra work; if they are provided with enough to eat and plenty of fresh water, they will take care of themselves far better than any human being knows how to care for them.

However, in localities where there are heavy frosts early in the season, some of the cull potatoes would have to be picked up, leaving only enough on the ground to last the geese until the severe weather sets in. Then a portion of the remainder would have to be fed daily, preferably under shelter.

Honeymoon Mountain

By FRANCES SHELLEY WEES

Copyright by Frances Shelley Wees WNU Service

"Well, I can pick cherries. Deborah said you could use them. I suppose the strawberries in the patch have to be picked, too, haven't they? And I heard hens cackling somewhere, although I didn't see them. I presume your fowl have the usual set of signals. So I can collect eggs."

Gary sighed. He rubbed vigorously on a plate. "All them things has to be done," he said. "And there's potatoes to hoe and corn to weed, and cucumbers and melons to water, and raspberries to tie up, and there's some species of the apricot trees needing popping. I noticed yesterday." He popped his hands on the edge of the sink and looked up. "If you want to work," he said, "there's plenty to be done."

Bryn put a foot on the chair beside the sink. "Had your hands full, hadn't you?" he said.

Gary did not reply. He was still rubbing Bryn's face. Bryn met his eyes steadily. After a moment Gary moved away, without speaking, and washed the sink. He was drying his apron to hang it up when there was a light footstep at the other end of the room, and Deborah came in. She was very pale, and there was in her face such a look of misery that both men stiffened themselves instantaneously.

"Grandmother liked the strawberries," Deborah said dully. "She thought they were wonderful." She might have been announcing the end of the world.

"What's happened?" Gary asked again, his face working. "What's the matter, Miss Deborah? Did you tell me? Did she guess about . . . ?" his eyes went to Bryn.

Deborah shook her head. From her pocket she produced a long sheet of paper. "There," she said tremulously, "that's my marketing list for today."

"Marketing list?" Gary repeated, with utter horror. He stared at the paper as if it were a message of destruction from Mars.

"Five dozen wax tapers, of the best quality," Gary read out. "A cook and two housemaids."

Gary groaned.

"Copies of all the modern magazines, particularly those relating to ladies' fashions and the new methods of entertaining."

Deborah swallowed.

"A plumber to inspect all the plumbing of the house. A man to put the electric plant in order."

"A catalogue of comfortable motor cars."

"Four or five gardeners."

New Novel Chosen as Serial for This Newspaper.

"Honeymoon Mountain," the latest novel by Frances Shelley Wees, the author's newest serial story, brought forth the following comment by the New York Times:

"A determined young lover will find way, even if it is a very roundabout way. The author has hedged in her young lovers with more obstacles than there were in the rocky mountain lands round the home where pretty Deborah lived in the wilderness of Oregon. The clearing up of her problems makes an appealing romance with pleasant mixture of the old-fashioned and the ultra modern."

There's a spring morning freshness about this story that carries you along with a thrilling sense of anticipation. Deborah's mother had made an unhappy marriage and her grandparents, to protect her from a like tragedy, placed her in the absolute seclusion of a mountain estate. At twenty-one, spoiled and naive, she was to marry a handpicked suitor and then come to her fortune. When the prospective husband proved impossible, Bryn stepped in as a substitute, ostensibly for the $50,000 he was offered. The young man's gallant struggle to win the shy but proud young wife makes a tale you'll long remember.

Frances Shelley Wees is a native of Oregon, the locale of this serial. California and Alberta, Canada, have been in her homes since childhood. She is descended, on the maternal side, from Canadians of English extraction. Her father's people are Americans, having from their westward migration in Revolutionary times.

Though quite a newcomer in the literary world, her rise has been marked with success. Some of her popular novels are "The Mystery of the Creeping Man," "Romance Island," and "The Astro Murderers." Read her latest as a serial in this paper.

BACK INSTALLMENTS SUPPLIED.

"A man who understands horses, knows where they may be obtained, and can care for them."

Bryn looked up with amused eyes. "You're evidently going to be taught to ride, Deborah." His eyes went again to the list.

"Ten pounds of the best Jasmine tea."

"Eight dollars a pound," Gary breathed. "That's her special blend."

"A cow, or sufficient cows to give plenty of rich cream."

"Well," Bryn said after a moment, "it's a fairly good beginning. I don't suppose she's heard of electric refrigerators, or vacuum cleaners, or radios, or any number of other modern inventions. The magazines will undoubtedly help, unless we go over them first and cut out all the advertisements."

Deborah sprang up. "Oh, what's the use of all this?" she cried. "I won't have you laughing at her. It's no use making fun. She thinks . . . she thinks we can manage anything now. She doesn't know. However am I going to tell her? What am I going to do?"

Gary turned away and began to walk up and down the floor, desperate. Deborah ran to the door and stood gazing out over the lovely peace and quiet of the June morning.

"It's all we can do to pay the taxes," Gary said at last.

There was a silence.

Deborah came back to the table. "I'll have to pretend I'm ill," she said. "I'll have to say I've a pain in my heart, or something like that. Something that can't stand excitement. That's the only thing."

Gary stared at her. But it was Bryn who objected. "You might as well tell her the truth," he said, "because specialists come high. We wouldn't be any better off."

"Let's tell her the truth," Gary said sharply. "Let's tell her, Miss Deborah. We're getting in too deep."

Bryn rose and said, "the way out has just occurred to me. Mr. Holworthy."

Deborah caught her breath. "What could he do?"

"He knows the circumstances. He could advance us the money we need."

"But will he?"

"We can try. I think he will. In the meantime, we can buy the smaller things. . . . I have a little money of my own, a few hundreds. I am happy to put them at our mutual disposal. And when we go into town, Deborah, we can mail a letter to Mr. Holworthy."

"We can't take your money."

"Nonsense. Of course you can take my money. You can give me a note, if you like, and pay me interest. I can't possibly use it myself up here, can I? So it's settled."

Gary drew a deep breath of relief. "I'd thought of borrowing before," he said. "But until Miss Deborah was married, we didn't have any prospects of paying it back. Now it's all right. I can see it's all right. If you don't mind lending what you have, sir."

"I don't like borrowing," Deborah continued to protest, her cheeks flaming. "We're taking enough from you. We can't take any more."

Gary turned toward her. "If we don't go through with it, if you tell your grandmother now, then this gentleman won't get his money at the end of the year. You know what your grandmother will do. You know how terrified she is of fortune hunters. She can't keep a little bit of the money for you, and she'd be afraid to keep it all. She wouldn't recognize this marriage. It's too late to marry anybody else; your birthday is past. If we told your grandmother the whole truth, that your . . . the man you've married is a stranger, paid to marry you, she would die. It would kill her. And then, maybe you could get the money, but it would kill your grandmother."

Deborah listened, her eyes dark and smouldering. She lifted them at last to Bryn. "So it's just as a safeguard for yourself that you're offering your money?" she asked icily.

"Something of the sort," Bryn said with truth.

CHAPTER IV

Bryn went upstairs to the south wing where his own room lay. He entered, sat down at the small writing table before the window, lifted the leather case from the floor beside him, unlocked it, took out writing paper, and began a letter to Tubby. After the usual jocular greetings Bryn asked him to procure ten pounds of Jasmine tea from an old Chinese friend of theirs, a cook from an employment agency, three housemaids and a butler.

With the letter in his pocket, Bryn went down the stairs in search of Deborah. He heard from the front of the house the sound of the piano. He went slowly toward the drawing room, listening. The piano was being banged with fury. Either Deborah or Grandmother was playing the "Norwegian Bridal Procession" in such a way that it sounded like the march on Paris.

He knocked lightly on the drawing room door, but the piano did not stop. He opened the door and went in. Deborah was pouncing angrily on handfuls of keys and making them wince in pain. Bryn stood for a moment watching her. He was restraining an impulse to walk forward, slip his arms underneath her, lift her from the stool and hold her firmly against him while she kicked and stormed and raged at him, while he looked down into her dark eyes, smiling, waiting for her anger to subside. There would be a moment then when she would lie, limp and beaten, in his arms; and then, with her face at his shoulder and her hair shaken loose over his arm, he could . . .

The music stopped abruptly, in the middle of a bar. Her hands dropped to her lap, and she stared at him, mute and angry.

"Sorry to interrupt," Bryn said; "the music was beautiful. Such expression. But I'm going in to town, and I wondered if you'd care to go."

"No."

"It's a long drive alone," Bryn said plaintively.

"Too sorry." She got up from the piano stool with a swish of starched skirt. "You may add something extra to your bill for the trip," she said coldly.

"But I Am Going to Town, and I Wondered if You'd Care to Go."

ly, and turned and went from the room without a backward glance.

He went upstairs again and knocked on Grandmother's door. She opened it promptly.

"I have to go to town in the car," Bryn told her. "Would you care to put on your bonnet and come? We could be back by dinner time."

Her eyes opened wide. "Go to Lynn-dale? In the car?"

"The road is pretty rough, but I'll drive carefully. Come on, Grandmother, let's go on a bust."

"Why . . . I don't know." Her hands fluttered helplessly. "I haven't been away from here for many years."

"You'll be comfortable. Really," promised Bryn.

She lifted her chin. She drew a deep breath. "Very well," she said at last. "Come exactly as you are, Grandmother. I'll give you five minutes, and not another second. Five minutes."

"Really," she said helplessly, but he did not wait. He ran downstairs and out to the car. He started the motor, turned the car carefully, came to a halt again at the door, and Grandmother was there, her breath coming and going with excitement, the hat perched at a careful angle, a pair of gloves in her hands. Bryn lifted her gently and put her down in the car.

Bryn stopped the car at the gate. He pushed the button of the horn. A long melodious call rang out. Instantly Deborah appeared on the little balcony before her room. Bryn opened Grandmother's door, and the old lady leaned out. She waved her handkerchief at the girl.

"I'm going to town, dear," she cried in her thin old voice, and sank back again with a sigh. And Bryn smiled behind his hand at the expression of horrified incredulity that had come over Deborah's face, an expression which, fortunately, her grandmother could not see.

OFF-HAND OBSERVATIONS.

BY R. R. CLARIDGE.

Friends of a square deal for the farmers, who try to help them, especially in our legislative bodies, national and state, do not seem able to make much progress in that direction; nor will they ever if they remain amenable to the regulatory rules made for the government of these bodies by the neck-and-belly trust.

Occasionally, however, there breaks into Congress or the Legislature a wild and woolly "woods colt" who refuses to be held in leash by big business regimentation. Instead of applying the more polite term, for instance, of "speculation" to stock or crop gambling, he calls it by its right name, and is straightway set upon by the pander-slander-press, big and little, from the metropolitan daily down to the mouthpiece of the small city smart set.

The Hearst newspaper chain is perfectly well satisfied with big business bolshevism as elucidated by the way the nation has been robbed for a long time, but it is horrified at some of the other varieties of radicalism imminent if nearly upon the neck of our Uncle Samuel. The big business variety has about destroyed what little was left of democracy, and which Hearst apparently claims as among the worst form of radicalism.

While reasonable inflation of money, which the Hearst variety of bolshevism warns against, is most needed by the nation today, with a return to the big business robber system of government it would mean a return to a season of depressed starvation, sooner or later. As the old age pension and the vet bonus goes into circulation, we are coming to get a little of the long needed inflation.

I have known for years that the honest-to-God old Farmers Union was, to all intents and purposes, dead in the Southern States. And as I had heard nothing about it for the longest, anywhere else, I supposed that the Farm Bureau, backed by big business, the same in turn backed by the Chamber of Commerce and the smart set in the big towns, had cleaned up the Farmers Union everywhere it had a foothold in the nation. I was mistaken. There was enough life left in the old organization to enable it to "come to" in several midwestern and northwestern states. And it appears to have resurrected itself with a bang back.

And what it is doing in the way of farmer cooperation is a caution if not a warning to the system, with its accessories that have been robbing the farmers ever since the Civil War. In next issue of Farming I may have something to say about how the Farmers Union is starting in to block the game of big business in the middle-west and northwestern states. Meantime, if any old time members of the Farmers Union in the Southern states, or the younger generation who have heard their forbears speak of it, feel interest in seeing it on the job again in the South, let us know by writing Fletcher's Farming, Hondo, Texas.

I note with disgust that demand by the United States has gone to one of the factions in Spain, engaged in an unholy slaughter of each other, said demand being for accounting for destruction of property owned by big business from the United States. This property for which our government demands restitution, in most cases, represents money that was "beat out" of the taxpayers of this country, and if productive, by the employment of foreign labor and the use of foreign material; in plainer words, with effect to starve American labor and American industry.

It seems to have filtered into the slow head of the U. S. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, that a poor way to head off starvation and nakedness is to destroy things to eat and wear.

One of the few wise things the present government has done or tried to do for the farmers was to stabilize the price of cotton at about 12 cents, raising the price from about 6 cents, and it was a big thing. But now, I note that the government proposes to cease buying cotton in competition with the crop-shooters in which case it remains to be seen what the gamblers will do to the cotton market.

AWAKE AMERICA.

Where are the Patriots, the loyal men and brave, Sons of the hardy Pioneers, who fought and died to save The Country that their fathers sought undaunted, unafraid. Who would protect by their life's blood the Constitution that was laid

A solid sure foundation for liberty and right, Untrammelled by dictatorship, tyranny and might, That is sealing slowly but surely like a living death, Chilling the very nation's life with its poison breath.

Are we but underlings who meekly give at each demand To filch that which is ours? And fill each undeserving hand Reached out to take that which they do not earn or own?

But weakens the morale until they can no longer stand alone, Crying instead, "Divide with us, all things shall be free!"

"Down with the power to think and act—All things in common it shall be!"

Until emboldened by their own desires they rave And turn to rend the very hand that sought to save

Them and their Country from the greedy thirst for power. Bought at what price? That our children's children shall curse the hour

Of our weakness, that left them bound with chains of debt they could not break?

Only to fling back at us our failure to stand like men and redeem the pledges that we make.

America for shame! Would you stand by and see your country's stronghold of Justice shattered?

Remember Washington at Valley Forge, Lexington, and Bunker Hill.

Lincoln, our Conmoner, carry the light of your convictions still, Like Paul Revere to waken the sleepers and warn of danger near.

Have your eyes been dimmed with rainbow promises unfulfilled and broken

That you cannot see in the horizon the gathering storm cloud token?

The guardsmen sleeping at their posts, the watchmen at the gate?

Awake! Awake! America, before it is too late to save this homeland of the free for which your fathers died.

Arise! and choose the right there is no other way beside—

To save the State. God give us men with principal so high

They will not take a nation's wealth to get themselves a place within the sky.

And give this people wisdom that they shall speak the word That shall not free Babbas and cruffify their Lord.

—FLORENCE A. HAYES.

From her flock of 200 white leghorn hens, Mrs. John Dunn of Live Oak county made $180.10 during a six months' period, according to Miss Linda Sears, county home demonstration agent. This is an increase of $64.94 over the profit she made from the same number of hens during the same six months of the previous year. During the first six months' period, the hens produced 959 dozen eggs and during the second period they produced 1431 dozen, showing an increase of 675 dozen. She attributes the increase to the fact that she has built a new poultry house, thus giving more room for her flock, and that she has increased the size of her poultry yard, thus giving the hens more green feed for the entire year.

QUIHI NOTES.

And Sarah died. . . and Abraham came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her. Gen. 23: 2.

Death, the heading of the last chapter in every life; whether you call it, flippantly, kicking the bucket, hopping the twig, snuffing the candle, or, symbolically, crossing the bar or crossing the Jordan, or, with a tinge of despair, speaking of the grisly terror, hell's grim tyrant, or, speaking more resignedly, about going the way of all flesh, about taking the last sleep and launching into eternity, or maybe, with a glimpse of vague hope, thinking of being gathered to the fathers, of going into a better land, of joining the choir invisible. It makes little difference in what terms you couch it, you will not conceal that fact of death being the period at the end of life's last sentence. And it comes with undisputed sovereignty, commanding the situation in hut and palace, isolated farm and crowded city, for the dead and the mourning, speaking the last word for him who goes, devising the day for them who stay behind—and the busiest finds time, the silliest pauses a moment, the most arrogant bows to superiority, the shallow harbors a thought or two. How did Abraham face the hour? Reveries of the past? Sarah, the lovely princess, the noble maiden he wooed in Ur of Chaldeia, when he brought her "a thousand love songs", the faithful companion that shared his pioneer enterprise in the land of promise, untouched by the homage of two kings adoring her beauty, the joyous mother fondling the son of his old age, the sun-nine of his declining years, true comrade in life's faith and battle. What is gone, but not the thrill of many happy years. Now he comes to mourn and weep for her. Is that all? His heather neighbors might do the same. Is that the need of all? Surely, some only have tears, heartache, hopelessness; Abraham hopefully stands and looks up after her at the foot of "the great world's altar stairs, that slope through darkness up to God". Where do you stand?

And the community Social is over. What a day—after a good deal of weather anxieties! What a beautiful crowd and the fine spirit all through and everywhere! Thanks all around to the visitors, the numerous donors, the members of the many and various committees, the volunteers, the players. And how was the play? "Kuhn, you tell him; I might seem boastful!" A splendid performance, to say the least. Happy hours well spent.

Surrounded by nearly all his children and many other relatives, Mr. Paul Oefinger celebrated his 75th birthday last Sunday, in good health and spirits, receiving many a token of good wishes for many returns. And since Mrs. Paul Oefinger has her birthday in the near future, the celebration went for both, and though in enfeebled condition, she seemed to enjoy every moment of the occasion. We did not forget to give thanks and praise to Him Who has guarded and blessed their way. "Lead, kindly Light", also for their future.

Elmer Loessberg is still at the St. Louis Hospital in San Antonio. The outlook is not so encouraging at the present, but the Lord has been through more serious cases. We ask for His grace and help.

Let's not forget our lecturer for next Sunday at the Luther League program, the Rev. F. A. Bracher, of Fredericksburg, who has promised to give us some glimpses of what he picked up during his last trip to Europe. You will enjoy his lecture, and you are invited.

Announcements for November the 8th: English service at 10:30; Sunday school in full at 9:30; German service at New Fountain, 2 P. M.; Luther League program at 7:30 P. M. Come, and welcome.

Remember you can get FARMING from this paper both for a year each for only $1.76.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

The Senior Class of St. Anthony's High School was honored with a Halloween party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Huegele on Saturday night.

The rooms were decorated in the Halloween motif, and the guests enjoyed games and stunts throughout the evening. Miss Bertha Weynand and Joe Martin Zinsmeyer were the lucky winners in a treasure hunt, and Joseph Koch and Oscar Konrath won prizes for the game "Stepping High".

Refreshments were served as a box supper, each box containing Halloween sandwiches, candy, fruit, and cake.

Those present were the honorees, Misses Regina Richter and Melvira Rothe, and Joseph Koch and Oscar Rohrbach; other guests, Misses Antoinette Dubray, Mathilda Kimmerly, Elaine Biry, Gertrude Weynand, and Inez Huegele, and Anthony Zerr, Joe Martin Zinsmeyer, and Lawrence Carle; and the hostesses, Misses Bertha Weynand and Erna Rose Huegele.

THE VALUE OF A FALL GARDEN.

The Garden Demonstration is one upon which most stress is being placed at the present time, since the goals set up for that demonstration call for a "nice fall garden plot". The interest shown in each demonstration is very encouraging.

In the planning of the fall garden plot, it is quite interesting to note the possible vegetables that can be grown in our communities, either now or later in the winter. A list of the most common ones are:

Asparagus, radish, broccoli, fall cabbage, collards, rape, swiss chard, spinach, turnips, beets, parsnip, carrots, shallots, lettuce, snap peas, string beans, fall Irish potatoes.

From a nutritional standpoint the leafy green and yellow vegetables are indispensable, because in them we find our most vital food. Vitamin A, B and C are in abundance in this class of vegetables and through careful study we find the general good health of the body being maintained by a diet containing them.

As a means for estimating the sufficient amount of leafy, green and yellow vegetables, we have designated a minimum of 100 ft. per member of the family in our garden plans. In this manner, one will be providing sufficient leafy, green and yellow vegetables to meet the daily needs of the family.

IRENE HAWKINS, County Home Dem. Agent.

NEW CHEVROLETS COMING.

"The finest Chevrolets in the company's quarter-century of automobile manufacture will make their bow here and throughout the country on November 7, R. W. Gaines, of the Gaines & Kolman Chevrolet Co., Chevrolet dealers, announced this week, upon his return from Houston, where 1000 dealers and salesmen from this section obtained official news of the new product from Mr. J. B. Hancock, manager of the Houston Zone, and members of his staff.

Mr. J. B. Hancock has just returned from Detroit, where 1000 members of Chevrolet's wholesale organization from coast to coast spent four days inspecting and driving the new car and reviewing with factory executives the program to be followed in presenting it. The new models adhere closely to the time-tried Chevrolet engineering principles, he reported, but combine greater power, economy, safety, and durability with striking new beauty and grace.

M. E. Coyle, president and general manager of Chevrolet, announced during the convention that the company had shattered all previous records during 1936, selling more cars and more trucks than in any previous year in its history, and leading the world in sales for the seventh time in the last 10 years. The total for the year will exceed 1,125,000 units, he said, and the objective for 1937 is 1,200,000.

ORGANIZATION OF HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUBS AND 4-H CLUBS IN MEDINA COUNTY PROGRESSING.

Miss Irene Hawkins, Medina County Home Demonstration Agent, reports the organization of the Home Demonstration Clubs for women and the 4-H Clubs for girls in this county progressing very satisfactorily. She is very pleased with the cooperation shown in each community which she has visited to date.

In Medina County Miss Hawkins has assisted in the organization so far of seven Women's Home Demonstration Clubs and three Girls' 4-H Clubs. They are as follows with the number of members enrolled:

Women's H. D. Clubs: D'Hanis, 15 members; Yancey, 12; Quihi, 11; Devine, 20; LaCoste, 12; Biry, 11; Dunlay, 13. Girls' 4-H Clubs: Yancey, 28; LaCoste 17; Seco, 8.

Each club expects to double its enrollment, and plans are being made for more club organizations in the County.

RAINY DAY JOBS ON THE FARM.

By V. M. Couch.

There are many odd jobs and some that are not so odd, that can be done on rainy days, if you happen to have any. If there has been no more rain where the reader resides during the summer season than there has been in Central New York State, then there is likely to be quite an accumulation of these odd jobs. In some sections of this part of the state there was no rain of any account from May until the last of July.

Rainy day jobs can nearly always be made profitable for the farmer, if he feels inclined to make them so. The poultry house probably needs attention to get it ready for the pullets and hens. There are nearly always more or less repairs to be made, the building enlarged or new equipment put in. The farm machinery will need to be looked over, oiled and perhaps some repairs made so as to shelter and be ready for use in the spring. Farm implements are expensive and a little extra care and work on them will mean several years of additional service.

A good coat of paint adds both to the appearance and life of farm tools, as well as to the house and barn when properly applied. The average cost for a two coat outside repaint job is only about $2.40 per gallon and allowing for the required amount of turpentine and drier. This is based on white lead at $11.00 per hundred pounds and linseed oil at $1.00 per gallon. The cost may run slightly higher or lower, depending on the locality. This work, of course, cannot be done in rainy or damp weather.

There are always more or less jobs about the house that need attention and may be taken care of on rainy days. The wood shed and cellar may need cleaning, especially before the food supply is ready to store in the fall. The attic is often a fire risk due to the accumulation of odds and ends. A storage room on the farm is useful, but should not be filled with useless junk. It is never difficult to find plenty of jobs on the farm rain or shine.

Two and a half million dollars have just been allocated to the maintenance of employment agencies by the Federal government. Not only will the taxpayers have to dig up this money but they will have to pay interest, possibly to the extent of 100 % of the amount, to the bondholders from whom it was borrowed. Meantime, no amount of employment agency ballyhoo can avail anything until industry can earn profits on the labor it employs.

Hope, ever the mainspring of life, Gives strength as needed in its strife!

MRS. LENA MANGOLD.

Mrs. August Mangold, nee Lena Tschirhart, aged 58, died in a San Antonio hospital Sunday night, Oct. 25, 1936. Mrs. Mangold suffered an attack of acute indigestion at her home here early Sunday morning and when she failed to respond to treatment she was hurried to San Antonio in the early evening. She died about 11 o'clock P. M.

Funeral services were delayed while an effort was being made to get word to her son, Cornelius Mangold, who is a member of a CCC camp located north of Silver City, New Mexico. The camp is a considerable distance in the interior and efforts to get in touch with the young man had failed up to Thursday morning.

Following services at the home in Castroville and in St. Louis Catholic Church, the deceased was laid to rest in St. Louis cemetery at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, October 29, 1936, in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowful relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dean J. Lenz.

The deceased was a native of Castroville and had made her home here all her life. She is survived by her husband, August J. Mangold; two sons, Leo and Cornelius; five sisters, Mrs. Rosa Biediger, Mrs. Louis Schott, Mrs. Joe Hans, Mrs. Adolph Ahr and Mrs. Margaret Keller; three brothers, J. L., Nick L., and August L. Tschirhart; and two grandchildren.

Heartfelt sympathy is extended to those who mourn the loss of a beloved wife, mother, sister and friend.
